Tommie Techie

Jane Beverly Tremblay, Management "Without the College of Management, the university seal would only have six divisions and it would look funny. Well, what do you expect? I'm only a freshman!"

Neil Desmond, Marketing - No one wears calculators on their sides."

Tom Meneghini, Physics - "I'll tell you what's so great about it! We Physics majors have been, for too long, stereotyped with that 1950's Brainy Image! It's time to reveal the truth! We're just as weird no, weirder - than everybody else! and we can prove it!"

what's so great what's so great about

Cheryl Alrutz, IndustrialTechnology - Do you drink water ? Do you take baths? Do you want to be poisoned or have your skin turn green? Then you need me!!"

Betsy Johnson, Physical Therapy "What other major demands the students to wear gym shorts, T-shirts (... or bathing suits) to class? How wonderfully casual! While the Techies on North slave through their three hour labs, the PT's on South enjoy occasional "relaxation" or "Pain Relief Technique" lab."

Ed Carchia, Psychology - "The best thing about being a Psychology major is that it is people-oriented. In an era where computers are increasing in status, the future potential of Psychology students will be in the area of caring and working with people.

People . . . that's what life is really all about."

Your major?

John Curtis, Music - "We'll all end up working together in the future - waiting on tables."

Jim McKay, History - "Historians make great dates!"

It was the most celebrated wedding of our times, as Prince Charles Arthur George took for his lawful wife the Lady Diana Frances Spencer in a glorious fanfare of pomp and publicity. The wedding translated into thirty-four languages and was seen around the world. It became the most publicized wedding of all times. Royal invitations were extended to most every prominent personage in the world, with only a very few refusals. People began gathering along the procession route as much as three days before the wedding. Lady Di, looking very much the bejeweled fairy princess in her resplendent gown, made her appearance on the arm of her father, Earl Spencer. In the presence of literally billions of onlookers, she became the Princess of Wales and mother-apparent to the new heir to the throne. All in all, it was a pageant of color and happiness as the Prince and Lady Diana made their way back to Buckingham Palace through the cheers of onlookers.

In August, the U.S. Air Traffic Controllers launched an illegal federal strike. By the weeks end 5100 of the 13000 strikers were given dismissal notices by the F.A.A. Five local union leaders were sent to jail, and federal judges were fining the union up to a million dollars a day for as long as the strike continued.

However, air traffic flow continued without too many complications. Military people were assigned to posts and others were being trained.

PATCO was concerned with three issues. They wanted a large wage increase, the work week to be reduced from 40 to 32 hours a week, and an earlier retirement age with higher pension benefits.

PATCO received little public sympathy, being taxpayer-supported with relatively high salaries. The ACLU did support PATCO stating, "The right to strike is a fundamental civil liberty and should not be denied to public employees any more than to public ones."

On June 11, the Baseball Player's Union went on strike because of disagreements with baseball owners. They wanted more control over their careers. They wanted more say about when they would be traded and how much they were worth.

The strike caused the season to be split in two. Many fans lost enthusiasm because of this, and ticket sales were sluggish.

They called it an historic occasion. Arizona's Sandra Day O'Connor, 51. was the first woman to be a Justice of the Supreme Court. She was, she said, a firm advocate of judicial restraint and a strong believer in the family as "the hope of the world and the strength of our country." O'Connor indicated support for the death penalty and she thinks for herself that abortion is simply offensive. But, she added, "I'm over the hill, I'm not going to be pregnant again. It's easy for me to say now." Senator Strom Thurmond, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, arranged a candlelit dinner in her honor. Justice O'Connors swearing-in was Sept. 24,

On august 31, while patroling an open ocean missile exercise over the Mediterranean, two U.S. F-14 Tomcat fighters intercepted two Soviet built Libyan SU-22 fighters with the intention of escorting the two jets through the missile exercise zone. But, as the F-14s approached the Libyan jets, one of the Libyans fired an air to air missile. Seeing the smoke from the missle, the two U.S. fighters violently broke away, evading the missile and wheeling sharply around to come in behind the Libyans. U.S. rules of engagement permit pilots to shoot back if fired upon, and each of the F-14s triggered a single heat seeking sidewinder missile, each scoring a hit on a Libyan plane. The engagement lasted less than one minute.

GS HAPPENINGS HAPPENINGS HAP

News of the incident reached Washington within six minutes but officials there decided to wait 5½ hrs., until the President was awake, to notify him.

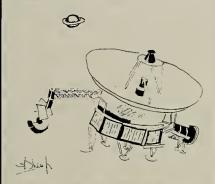

In September, the Rolling Stones started a U.S. tour for the first time since 1978. They started off by staying at a recording studio in Massachusetts. They made a surprise appearance at Sir Morgan's Cove in Worcester under the name of the "Cockroaches."

The tour was expected to pull in between 30 and 40 million dollars. Also, Jovan Inc. paid the Stones a large sum to have its name stamped on concert tickets.

Racing toward Saturn, the sixth planet of our solar system at 54,000 miles per hour, the 1,800 pound spacecraft arrived at the ringed beauty after four years of space travel. Voyager 2 conducted experiments and took pictures. Of particular interest to NASA scientists are Saturn's weather, Saturn's moons, and her rings. Voyager's arrival at Saturn was a beautiful finale to two decades of U.S. unmanned space exploration. Voyager 2 is now on its way to Uranus.

The newspapers headlined another assassination and the world reeled in shock. Since 1970, 22 world leaders have been assassinated but none who were so well known for their fight for peace as Anwar Sadat, Egypt's 62 year old president. His career was not always peaceful; he was an ex-terrorist. But, all will remember him most for the gigantic step he took to restore peace in the middle east. A man dedicated to peace, Sadat made the first step to end Egypt's age old war with Israel, and won the 1979 Nobel Prize. With all these accomplishments, it would seem unlikely that on October 6, 1981, four suicidal killers would succeed in slaying Anwar Sadat. Those of us who hope for eventual world peace will truly miss the great mind of this man of peace.

Moshe Dayan died early in October of a heart attack at age 66. By that time, he had changed his image of a warrier/hero to an advocate of peace. Dayan was a realist and yet a poet. Henry Kissinger observed, "I always thought he would be one who could make peace because he was the one who understood the Arabs." Prime Minister Begin said: "He was one of our greatest fighters of the ages. He was the rarest of heros- a soldier who could wage peace as fiercely as he waged war."

This year, ice cream has become big business. Americans produced over 798000 gallons of ice cream in all grades last year, and we eat more of it than any other country, with Australia and New Zealand a distant second and third.

COMPUTER SCIENCE

Computers now trace our lives from cradle to grave: hospital records, social security, IRS, police records, school records, credit cards, magazine subscriptions, transactions with insurance companies, the list can go on. Computers now play a major role in the design of most industrial products. So, in conclusion, without us programmers to operate these computers, society and organizations would just simply cease to exist.

The Money.

ART

To study art is to increase and amplify one's appreciation of the visual world. In other words—"seeing" becomes so exciting, it's a natural high!

Art is the most vital of all majors; it alone constitutes the sole reason for all students remaining sane. The Art major provides a release of agression or scapegoat for all those lesser majors. The Art major is always there to be "ragged upon" by Techies, and their hordes. True, we, the Art majors, cannot help these poor souls by endowing our creativity upon them or our perceptive eye. Instead we will take their abuse in order for them to feel themselves to be creatures greater than we are.

MUSIC

Knowing that when I graduate, I won't be the only one without a job.

Music majors diminish their sadness, augment their happy thoughts, and with our usual effort, we make minor problems of major ones.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

It is an adventure. We can create a better life for our society.

Well, God said it better when he said to Moses, "I am, that am." But EE's keep the world going round. "We are, that are!"

EE's must be the best. Who else can survive the "Fast haste" lectures and remain sane, if we ever were!

While other Engineers blurt out formulas, we actually plug them in. EE-We bring good things to light!

With the new and broadening horizons in the Electrical profession, I forsee an invitation for myself to capitalize on this appealing opportunity. To prepare myself for a better tomorrow and to get rich quick. Wow, what a concept.

Eight persons, five of them children, were killed on March 5, when a three-alarm fire roared through a three story tenement building at 34-36 Decatur Street.

Arson was the cause of the blaze. Despite a state law requiring 54 them, the building had no smoke detectors. The lives of these people could have been spared, had the landlord complied with the law.

Last November, David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, had a conflict of opinion with Reagan Administration policies. Stockman, who excelled at cutting the budget and slashing government programs, stated in the Atlantic Monthly that the approach Reagan was taking to balance the budget and cut taxes was incorrect. After a verbal spanking from the President, Stockman stayed on with the administration, but with the resulting damage that the public had doubts about the Reagan Economic plan.

Further problems developed with National Security Advisor Richard Allen. After struggles with Secretary of State Haig, Allen was accused by the press of accepting bribes. The bribes, consisting of a $1000 honorarium and watches from Japanese press writers, were supposedly given in exchange for an exclusive interview with Nancy Reagan. Allen denied any wrongdoing and was considered innocent by the President. Still, Allen resigned from his post.

The space shuttle's second test flight was cut short last November due to clogged oil filters. Despite this, astronauts Engle and Truly managed to test the Canadian built mechanical arm that wll be used to send satellites and other objects into orbit. The return landing also proved a test as winds were 24 m.p.h. upon arrival. The Columbia passed this obstacle easily. With two more test flights to go before Columbia and her fleet of sister ships will assume regular service, there is already competition coming from a united European space effort to begin a similar unmanned service.

As 1981 came to a close, it was rumored that Libyan leader Gaddafi had ordered hit teams into the U.S. to kill President Ronald Reagan, and other top officials.

Whether the threat was real or not cannot be answered. However, even if the evidence of the five supposed hit teams is discounted, Gaddafi's past record of terrorism, invasion (of the nation of Chad), and desires to buy an atom bomb, as well as his own ambitions of establishing an Arabic Empire under his leadership, was enough to put U.S. security forces on alert. Previous encounters with Gaddafi, the August dogfight of American and Libyan planes, as well as the attempted assassination of U.S. Charge d'Affaires Chapman in Paris that November have caused much concern over a country of only three million, yet one madman.

Polish Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski ordered a crackdown on the Polish Union Solidarity and all persons committing civil disobedience. In the true spirit of leftist politics, the Polish government used police and military forces to enforce the martial law. The police units are considered to be very loyal to the party as they and their families live separated from the bulk, all other Polish peoples. It is this separation and special treatment that assures loyalty to the govt. in such matters. However, it is questioned if the military made of Polish citizens would support a type of large scale firing upon the people. In the past the military had refused to fire until the early 70's when they once did fire upon workers. The crackdown imprisoned thousands of Solidarity supporters. Lech Walesa himself is still being held well into the summer of '82.

This occurred shortly before Christmas and was the result not so much of the threat of the union but of the weakening capability of the communist govt. to provide substance and stability for its people. There is no conclusion seen to the situation at present.

Actress Natalie Wood died in early December at the age of 43. She was working at the time on the movie Brainstorm.

On a weekend hiatus, Wood, Husband Robert Wagner, and leading man Christopher Walken headed for the sea. They relaxed aboard the Wagner's 60-ft. yacht Splendour, moored off Santa Catalina Island, near Los Angeles.

Around midnight, Wood stepped out on deck. She untied the rubber dinghy from the stern, and then fell from the Splendour into the sea, bruising her cheek as she tumbled overboard. By 1:30, her husband became worried about his wife and called the harbor master. Her body was found near dawn.

Wood acted in her first movie at the age of four, and finished 45 movies before her life ended.

Early in April, 2500 Argentine troops, backed by an aircraft carrier, three missile destroyers and other warships, swooped down on the Falkland Islands, intending to get rid of British rule.

The House of Commons in England held its first emergency meeting since the Suez Canal crisis of 1956. The vote was unanimous in directing the govt. to recover the island by force if intensive diplomatic efforts should fail.

The disputed islands have been the focus of controversy between Brirain and Argentina for over 150 years. Argentina has claimed the islands, even though the 1700 residents are overwhelmingly English speaking British subjects.

The battle continued through April and May, finally coming to a cease fire in mid-June.

THE SENIOR

Question: What Can You Say About U-Lowell After Being Here So Long?

nication between the administration and the students. More information should be available for the commuting students so they can get involved in campus activities.

Jenny Touliopoulos, AC. This school has changed a lot since I've been here. The students are beginning to develope a sense of loyalty to the school since the merger of Lowell State and Lowell Tech. The teachers seem to have a closer relationship with the students too.

ense of rger of eachers ith the Nancy Tomasz, IT. You learn to love it! Freshman year was mostly studying and no fun, but as the years went by there was more time for friends and good times. Studying became less of a chore, too!

Sam Mosto, MG. Ever since I've been here the clocks haven't worked (I've always wanted to say that). When I was a freshman I had a 7:00 class and the clock always read 7:30—I never knew what time it was! I recommend U-Lowell organize a committee for the repairing of clocks on campus.

Cathy Doyle, NU. I liked U-Lowell a lot and thought the people were really friendly. The senior nursing class was an outstanding group.

Mike Sheehan, MG. I feel they let too many students in the school and as a result students have had a hard time getting preferred courses at registration. They should make entrance requirements a little bit tougher. The classes would be more personable too.

CAMPUS COSMO By Joe Pallaria

Eileen Moloney, HE. I never liked the way the campuses were divided because it was inconvenient to travel to classes. I thought the school was a good one academically and provided a lot of outside professional experience.

Mark Dinnie, PL. I've seen dorm life hange 180 degrees since I've been here. In he beginning it was a place for everyone b be together, but enforcement of some ules have been carried to extremes (havig beer in the hallways). I'm disappointd that they're trying to make dorm life no

Mike Domenicucci, BFA, The interaction between the north and south campuses involving people and faculty is lacking. One example was not informing art students about the papermaking lab on north campus until the end of the school year.

Steve Anderson, ME. This school has an incredible amount of potential for social and academic activities, but it's still up to the individual to make the best of it.

Shelagh Doherty, MG. People at this school don't party enough. The quality is here, but the quantity is not.

Rosanna Bruzzese, MG. What really pissed me off was the run-around I've gotten over the past four years. You get shuffled from one department to the next when trying to get information and still don't get any answers!

Sissy Breed, MT. The parties, people, and tennis matches made it worthwhile over the past four years. It was a lot of fun, but I can't wait to leave.

Debbe Quadri, MIS. The biggest flaw is with the placement office because they're not that helpful for management majors in job placement. We should get at least half the job interviews that engineering students get.

Ellen McGurn, HSA. The best part of my experience here at U-Lowell we with the good friends that I've mad throughout my four years here. The have been there for the fun and for the hard times.

Elaine Imbrogna, FN. I've met a lot of interesting people and had some good classes since I've been here. I eventually changed my major to finance because of the enthusiasm that professors projected in the subject.

Nick Sampas, PH. It was really a lot of work, but I don't think that is the general concensus. I had my fun too.

Allen Silva, MIS. The thing I didn enjoy was registration. I looked forwar to this last semester—seeing student coming out of registration perplexe and knowing I didn't have to get through it again.

English

Even if you don't get a job, you will be able to articulately explain why.

English, besides its obvious aesthetic value, aids in interacting with those who speak the language. With an English degree, you can say such words as "syncophant" and "tumultous" without laughing hysterically.

Meteorology

Meteorology is the major with the most important social implications in the world. After all, how many conversations would never have been started if we didn't have the weather to talk about?

Nursing

Without nurses to aid doctors to heal patients, no one would be well enough to survive any other major. So, for us nurses, you should thank God.

Mechanical Engineering

Without ME the world is a Greek tragedy without the tragic hero.

The only good thing about ME is the amound of cocaine I'll be able to afford when I graduate.

It I don't get a degree in ME, my wife will have to get a job and my two kids won't talk to me any more.

We're the only people who can walk straight, carry a big calculator, and keep our heads spinning all at the same time!

Mathematics

Math is the basis to all life. Without numbers, where would the world be now? We wouldn't have computers or cars or planes without having the knowledge of math.

Since most people find math so difficult, only intelligent people would dare to major in it, and I'm proud that I'm one among them.

Mathematics is the basis of many other fields such as physics, chemistry, and business. Without a solid background in math and logic it would be impossible to solve problems. Also math applications can relate to physical problems.

Physics

Physics is the pure, unadulterated science which seeks the ultimate truth of the universe. It is not confined to any one realm but covers all that is, some that isn't and is a religion unto itself.

Physical Therapy

Without Physical Therapy majors, who would be left to say, "If it's physical, it's therapy."

Accounting

The decisions we make can mean life or death to businesses today!

It helps save you money at tax time and gives businessmen time to think of other things and leave the creative bookwork to us.

Biology

Biology is the study of life itself. What could be better?

The people in it . . . . and that even includes the instructors.

The study of life can never be completely achieved, thus allowing one to have a diverse knowledge of the subject, yet many opportunities to advance in a particular area.

Industrial Technology

Industrial Technology is where "IT's" at!

The bunch of us are needed. Someone has to keep things running.

My major contains real people, not mindless computerized engineers. IT's deal more with real life problems than they do with theory.

My major is great because it is easy and a good job comes out of it.

IT offers students an overview of various fields of study. It molds them into versatile engineers, capable of being used as all around useful employees. This is something most companies look for in an entry level engineer.

Economics

Economics teaches why everything is so expensive. It helps you to understand inflation, and why prices go up in general. It is one of the few things I learn here that will be of practical use later on in life.

Nuclear Engineering

We make the bombs and nuke plants that will destroy the world. Besides, it's cheaper for out-of-state students. The job market is very bright.

No matter how hard they try, they'll never put out our lights. We have a natural glow.

I guess that getting a week off in March to go to Florida, or go to the mountains for some Spring skiing month off between semesters to visit relatives, head north for skiing, party four straight days ringing in the New Year, travel to Georgia to meet people, and then still have plenty of time for myself isn't exactly a stiff fine to pay either.

Boy, I really wish I could stay now. I'll really miss all the fun I've had. But more than that, I'll miss the people. A place is that; just a place. But the people, ahhh that's what I'll miss.

(Shrug. Turn away.) (Sniff. Start to walk away.)

Earth, Wind, & Fire

Sequined thighs. Pins in facial flesh and flamboyant headbands. K-tel presents . . . for your stotic enjoyment . . . Supermarket music . . . A poodle with a strawberry blonde fall and designer jeans? 1 Is it my imagination or is music just another sick puppy being slaughtered on the stage for the sake of a technicogrosso thrill and someone's expensive habit? 2 To be a music major when the rest of the world is out playing Pacman, to want to perpetrate culture as a computerized version of Tchaikovsky's Concerto No. 4 plays on the radio-my infinite baffle as to my place is this plastic volcano continues. Nightmares fester. My sweat, my insanity, my insomnia, and a million more ailments of the music major mire leave the society in hopeless, piteous, mirth. There I sit in the dregs of Boston Public Garden, joining the self-less platoon of one-man-band, tin-can, musicians, complete with a fake eyepatch, limp, and a perpetually empty instrument case. Hey, who wants to hear my song? Or would you rather play Russian Rou-

This response to the assumed ideal of the general public, particularly that paranoid parental set with offspring interested in the music field, that a music major does not click and flow with the rest of this rapidly expanding universal dynamo is much malarkey and a lot of bullshit. For who will teach those that compile a sonata or a sequence into a marketable design, the correct notes and meter and ornamentation? Who will teach the children where their digital watches got that tricky little melody that bleeps off at a certain time of day? How will the technological society expand creatively, artistically, and socially without the beauty music brings? My heart bleeds to note the timely expanse of the world's deadened, anesthesized ears, as it begins frighteningly to move to the beat, faster and faster each day, of a DIGI-VAC or our own CYBER. Luckily, for there are exceptions to every rule and some way out of every potentially disastrous situation, there are a few hardworking musicians, still learning and growing themselves, that want to broaden others' lives through music. Though surely the strata of interested participants may be diminishing, the minority that lust music in their souls will ever pervade. It shames and saddens me to think that the next few generations could possibly be the victims of neglect, where musical talent is concerned. There are some radical thinkers in the music program that will prevent this avalanche of creative apathy that seems to grow with every micro-chip or mini-this and that's invented.

When I was seven, I'd come home from school, have a poptart, put on the radio and a rawhide headband and kind of trip around the living room to Tina Turner or Vanilla Fudge or the extremely excellent Cream and watch the games going on in the street, like Dodgeball or Spud or Skrew-On-The-Neighborhood Sissy (which, if I was out there would be me, so you see, music was sort of a knight in shining armour, still is . . .) and wish I was old enough to live in a commune or have my own rockband. It was cool back then to be into music, and my interest was developed by some very attentive persons. But what are you going to do when suddenly you realize that the high school facade is coming to a close and there's this thing called software and your friends seem to be on some sort of nutritional life schedule of four years there, then here, then we got the time card and clock and office gossip-"Oh did you see the new Cosmo? They said it took two months to get her to look like that?"-cold sweat and screaming "Who Am I?" Maximum identity hassles at the ripe old age of seventeen sort of made me want to conform and when I eventually arrived at the University of Lowell. after bopping through the here, there, everywhereness, of indecision, albeit, planned, indecision, at nineteen, I wanted to believe I had an "all-encompassing passion to know Lowell's flush force" and wholeheartedly signed up for the regimens of civil engineering. It didn't last the summer-I auditioned for the music program then and have been exploring my self-hood ever since. I've accepted technology, and can, God forbid, actually get myself out of a nonterminating loop. It doesn't matter to me any more if I am retired at thirty-four with one obscure album to my name. and one person, that one fan, who will faithfully, doggedly, follow me to my once-a-year gig at the Rainbow Cafe. At least I can depend on the person to prattle incessantly about the joys of my purely indivdualistic way of not being able to reach the commercial public with a tune like "Who Really Cares If I've Got Green Armpit Hair?" Punk is intense, as I see it, and it won't stop with hair-on-the-head dying, like technology, these sickies are moving, hey man, I'm prepared . . . . . . So what if it won't sell?

Understand and look with respect to those who find their souls within the limitless limits of musical accuracy and enlightenment. There is much to be reckoned with when you're trying with all your might to come in at the right beat or to get that F#, at the millionth try, it is, suddenly there, there, oh wow, can you feel it? It is an experience, however mind boggling and, at times depressing, to want to integrate music into a seemingly unresponsive world and yet remain in a constant equitable tide with that population and yourself. Appreciating the party rock that everyone forgets when the party's over is a musical function that reaches most people. There is much extra effort involved when a closeness is desired with the amazing contributions of past musical eras, and to be sure, the true beginnings of tonality. There is nothing more beautiful than a Corelli sonata on a rainy day, nothing more sexy than a Billie Holiday song on a smokey night, nothing more satisfyingly exhausting than a wired, wound, truckin', rock concert . . . . We seek a reconciliation with technology and the arts. The College of Music at the University of Lowell is becoming a realistic touchstone for these sentiments that may crowd a music major's mind, like a backwards sandwich-board adage: "I love it . . . . . arrrrgh... is it practical and will I starve?". People into music, whether it be classical, jazz, GB tunes, or heavy new wave, have the options of channeling that motivation of artisticality towards the advancements of technology. Through the recording industry and commercial music production and the open-ended possibilities of creating new sounds, what with all that's being explored in electronic music, we are grooving on to a peaceful existence of harmony with the calculated society in which we live. But there will never be a bad thing to say about those who simply WANT TO PLAY! I know that there will always be those listening in awe. And I leave you . . . here comes my Secret Journey.

-Jill Christine Foster

The Art of Karate

There is no single way to describe or explain Karate. It's a physical training, like running or weightlifting. It's a sport that can be competitive or non-competitive, team or individual. Practice requires a minimum of one person while the maximum is limited by workout space.

Karate as physical training is excellent. It is a highly dynamic activity, making balanced use of a large number of body muscles and developing coordination and agility.

Flexibility and looseness are important for good technique, so warmups emphasize stretching exercises like those used in running, football, and ballet. Calisthenics improve overall strength and endurance. Basics develop fast, powerful, and accurate technique. Kata provides the same benefits as basics, and also further improves timing and balance. Sparring combines all the elements of basics and kata: power, speed, accuracy (control), balance, timing, endurance and spirit.

Our instructor is Master Kazumi Tabata. Master Tabata has been studying karate since the age of 13, and reached the level of second degree black belt by his freshman year in high school. He began studying the Shotokan style while persuing a degree in literature at Wasda University in Japan.

In 1967, he was sent to the United States by Master Obata, the vice-president of the All-Japan Collegiate Karate Association, and the oldest of Master Funakoshi's students. Master Funakoshi was the man who introduced and popularized karate in Japan. Master Tabata was sent as the chief instructor of the All-American Karate Federation, and in 1969, founded the New England Collegiate Karate Conference, of which Lowell is one of the original members. The Lowell Tech and ULowell teams have taken conference events many times over the years, but at the Spring '81 tournament, Lowell became the first college to take first place in all three advanced events; team fighting, kata, and two-ontwo fighting-the "Boston Battle"). In the Fall '81 tournament, Lowell again took all three events.

Master Tabata is unendingly patient with beginners, teaching the basics as he learned them over thirty years ago. He looks at all his students as equal, but expects students to work at improving themselves, both physically and mentally, in technique and in spirit.

According to Master Funakoshi, "Spirit is first, technique, second." The right spirit develops good technique. Respect is an integral part of good spirit; respect not only in the dojo (workout place) for the instructor and fellow students, but also outside of the dojo in everyday life.

There are philosophies and religions, both oriental and western, that seek to explain the "spirit" of the individual. Placing aside any religious origins or connotations, the concept of "spirit" in karate is that source of drive, will, desire, and determination that motivates the individual. Spirit is the driving force within a person.

Spirit is what pushes you through a workout. Some workouts seem effortless, others require incredible effort to get through. Workouts vary in difficulty partly due to the nature of what is taught. When a new technique or kata is taught, the training is more mental. A kata is a series of offensive and defensive movements against imaginary opponents practiced for timing speed, balance, and focus of physical and mental energies. On the other hand, a sparring workout requires a great deal of endurance and can be far more grueling.

The group's spirit and excitement have a lot to do with how hard a workout feels. Special Training is a weekend long series of workouts. Karateka (students of karate) of all ranks, from beginner to black belt can go to Special Training. Once the weekend begins, participants are strongly encouraged (by both the group and Master Tabata) to complete the training, which runs from Friday to Sunday. The first workout begins about 10 p.m. Friday and finishes at four o'clock Saturday morning. About twenty different block, punch, and kick techniques and combinations are covered for the first four hours, and stances are held for the last two. The next workout begins at six a.m., and the weekend continues with three to four hour sessions and two to three hour breaks until Sunday. To get through the training, when arms and legs ache, when muscles barely function, and when the mind is consumed with effort, an inner energy must be tapped.

Everyone possesses this inner energy or spirit. It can be brought out and developed through karate training, but its practical purpose is to be applied to aspects of life.

Learning to overcome the physical or mental pain of hard work, and learning to push past one's present limitations enables the karateka to push past other obstacles in his or her life. This in essence enables the individual to gain control, and realize that he or she is responsible for who and what they are.

Karate training offers many rewards. Master of technique an proficiency in fighting are long range results that provide a great sense of accomplishment. But the learning and improving process is continuous, and of itself gives a sense of direction and satisfaction.

Mass. Students Assist Lumpkin's Senior Citizens

Sixteen students from the Newman Center at the University of Lowell, in Massachusetts, have dedicated a part of their winter break from classes, to be of service to Senior Citizens in the Lumpkin County area, this week.

The students, under the direction of Father Fred Guthrie, from the Lowell Newman Center, are working through Saint Luke the Evangelist Catholic Church, with the aid of David Oberhausen, of the local Housing Authority.

Helping others, making friends, and each one's own personal growth are the main attractions of this annual trip. The activities of the students include cutting firewood, winterizing homes, making minor home repairs, doing yardwork, and repairing wells. Also on the agenda of the group are sightseeing, panning for gold, and getting to know Georgia through its people.

During their stay in Dahlonega, the students are residing with parishioners from Saint Luke's. The hospitality of the community makes this encounter possible.

This is the second time that students from Lowell have visited Dahlonega. Returning participants are Mark Acciani, Bill Donovan, Mary Driscoll, and Cheryl Wilson.

Newcomers to this experience are Steve Anderson, Colleen Finnegan, Bob Foster, Jim Goddard, Leanna Hebert, Beverly Kille, Pierre LeBlanc, Doreen Orlando, Brian Scannell, Chris Webber, Meredith Shaw, and Steve Turner.

Their university majors include Civil Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Physical Therapy, Medical Technology, and Accounting.

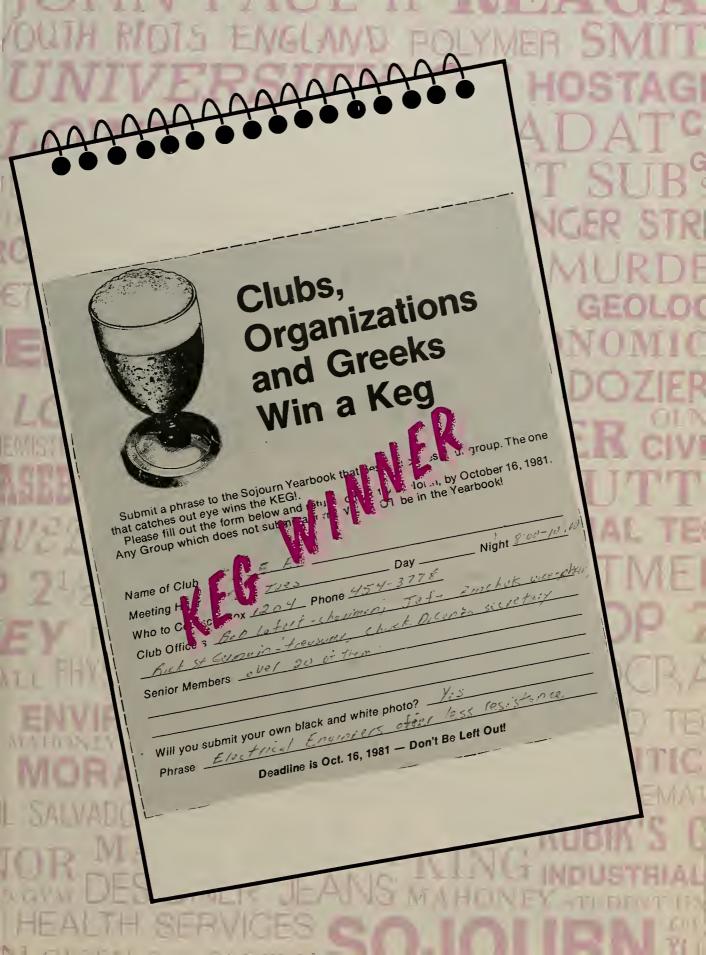

Accountants do it with greater assets!!!

Jus' rolling along the highway Seeing the miles slowly unfold I press onward toward the horizon toward the goals that are all mine...Upon my back I carry my loads and in my heart, my spirit my influence my confidence my strength to press on to press on. One day, I will arrive I will stop to restI will lay down my loads and take satisfaction in my spirit. And soon, I shall begin anew: take flight plunge ahead to a new horizon to a new glory keeping in mind my happiness and those for whom I care I will press on I will press on.

-Susan M. Newton

Warm Down

Dampness darkened the sides of her leotard.
Curls of clinging hair and flecks of chalkdust framed her forehead.
Labored split-leaps landed loudly on a floor too hard under a mirror too harsh.
Music stops,
and the dizzy dancer cruinples.

-Lauren Chin

Around my shoes-A parade of ants. The full moon in July: A discarded orange peel bright against the black tar night.

-Lauren Chin and Leo Tanguay

Basic Training

As soon as the sargeant, clad in green fatigues, barked out orders to climb the thick braided rope, the squadron of soldiers sprinted toward the scaffolding and leaped onto the ropes. grasping barehanded. Knees squeezed and biceps bulged, pushing and pulling the gasping bodies upwards until all had mounted the platform. Inchworms ascend blindly toward tastier leaves And pay no mind to birds.

Another year has come and gone, Events we'd waited for—passed on. Too soon we'll leave our college days And scatter on our separate ways.

Remember grammar school? The friends With whom we'd fight and make amends? The lunches (brown bag), marbles, games, The jump-ropes, yo-yo's, best friends' names?

Do you remember junior high When we began to question why We had to learn to do things right? Remember how we learned to fight? For most of us, our high school years Were filled with tests and countless lears Like growing up and getting old And boylriends, girlfriends, treasured gold.

Remember life the way it was Remember everything, because Our days were best when we were small And didn't need to think at all.
